

WWW.ISNCC.ORG

COMMUNICATIONS PORTFOLIO (ONE CANDIDATE)

YUHAN LU

Qualifications/Credentials: MSN, RN, Member of Oncology Nursing Committee of Chinese Nursing Association (ISNCC full member), Associate Professor

Current Position: President of Oncology Nursing Committee of Chinese Nursing Association; Director of Nursing Department of Peking University Cancer Hospital

Brief Description of Current Role

As the president of Oncology Nursing Committee of Chinese Nursing Association and executive committee member of the Asian Oncology Nursing Society, I enhance communication among regions and organizations, and contribute to the development and advancement of oncology nursing. I have chaired and participated in numerous domestic and international conferences and workshops, engaging in extensive exchanges and collaborations with professionals from different regions. As the director of a leading cancer hospital in China, I focus on improving care quality.

Details of Selected and Applicable Positions Held or Awards Gained:

Positions Held: - Director, Nursing Department, Peking University Cancer Hospital (2012-Present): Leading the nursing department with a focus on enhancing oncology care practices and patient support systems. - Associate Professor, Peking University School of Nursing (2020-Present): Engaging in academic leadership and research in oncology nursing. - Executive Committee Member, Asian Oncology Nursing Society (2022-2023), and Board Member (2023-Present): Contributing to the development of oncology nursing standards and practices at an international level. - Chairperson, Oncology Nursing Committee of Chinese Nursing Association (2023-Present): Spearheading initiatives to advance oncology nursing practices nationally.

Awards Received: - Distinguished Editorial Board Member Award, Asia-Pacific Journal of Oncology Nursing (2024): For significant contributions to the dissemination of oncology nursing knowledge. - ELNEC Award of Excellence, City of Hope and Beckman Research Institute and American Association of Colleges of Nursing (2015 & 2016): Recognized for excellence in nursing education and leadership in end-of-life care. - Excellent Nurse Award, Beijing Nursing Association (2017), and Beijing Municipal Health Bureau and Beijing Nurse Society (2012): Acknowledged for outstanding nursing practice and patient care in Beijing. Career Achievements: - Authored and co-authored numerous research papers focused on oncology nursing practices, patient care, and supportive care strategies, contributing to the advancement of the field. - Played a pivotal role in the development and implementation of nursing care protocols and educational programs aimed at improving the quality of cancer care.

Leadership Experience: - Demonstrated leadership in various capacities, including directing nursing departments, leading academic research projects, and serving on executive committees of professional nursing societies. - Organized and facilitated numerous international and domestic conferences and educational forums aimed at promoting oncology nursing practices and patient care standards. Community Service: - Actively involved in community outreach programs focused on cancer care education, patient support, and health promotion, contributing to the broader societal understanding and support of oncology care. Additionally, on national platforms such as the National Regional Medical Centers and the Chinese Nursing Association, organized and participated in community medical support and health education initiatives in medically underserved areas such as Inner Mongolia and Fujian, aiming to bridge the gap in healthcare resources access and promote overall well-being.

Other Relevant Information: - Holding multiple editorial board memberships, showcasing a commitment to advancing nursing knowledge through scholarly publications. - Engaging in continuous professional development and contributing to the field through invited presentations and lectures at national and international conferences.

Reasons Why the Nominee Is a Good Candidate for the Board of Directors Position:

Expertise and Experience: My extensive background in oncology nursing, through leadership roles at Peking University Cancer Hospital and the Oncology Nursing Committee of the Chinese Nursing Association, has established me as a seasoned expert in cancer care. My achievements in clinical practice, research, and education, underscored by significant publications and awards, reflect my comprehensive understanding of oncology nursing challenges and innovations.

Leadership: I have demonstrated exceptional leadership by spearheading various initiatives and projects, significantly improving cancer care quality and nursing education. My involvement in both national and international nursing organizations showcases my ability to inspire teams towards excellence in oncology nursing.

International Perspective My active participation with the Asian Oncology Nursing Society and ISNCC contributions to the global oncology community highlight my commitment to international collaboration. This global outlook enables me to contribute effectively to ISNCC's international goals.

Contribution and Commitment: My dedication to oncology nursing is evident through my continuous efforts to enhance patient care, nursing education, and professional development. My passion and proactive approach underscore my strong commitment to advancing ISNCC's mission.

Communication and Collaboration Skills: My ability to communicate and collaborate effectively with a diverse range of stakeholders, including healthcare professionals, researchers, and policymakers, showcases my strong interpersonal and teamwork skills, crucial for fostering collaboration within ISNCC.

Vision and Goals: Through effective communication, I aim to utilize my position on the ISNCC Board to foster innovative approaches to cancer care, promote global nursing education, and advocate for policies that support the oncology nursing profession. By enhancing communication channels and strategies, my vision includes strengthening ISNCC's leadership in global cancer care through strategic partnerships and educational initiatives. With improved communication, we can better engage with stakeholders, share knowledge, and collaborate on impactful projects, ultimately advancing the field of oncology nursing and improving patient outcomes worldwide. My career in oncology nursing, combined with my leadership skills, international perspective, dedication, and vision, makes me a suitable candidate for the Board of Directors position at ISNCC. I am committed to contributing positively to the council's objectives and the global oncology nursing community.

Reasons Why the Nominee Is a Good Candidate for the Board of Directors Position:

I have been a cancer nurse since 1985 and have long experience in both clinical cancer nursing, leadership, teaching, supervision, advocacy work and research. My main focus areas in cancer nursing research are patient safety, communication, leadership, inequalities, cancer prevention and cancer care organization. I have a strong commitment in cancer nursing, with more than 10 years' experience of international work. This includes arranging educational events in central and eastern Europe, leading scientific committees for international congresses and also high level advocacy work (mainly impacting recognition, educational opportunities and occupational safety on EU level).